

Quadrato Asti Giallo - The giant yellow Quadrato bell pepper. The huge fruit are a favorite here. They're large, beautiful and blocky, with very thick walls, the flavor is outstanding - sweet and rich! This Italian variety gives very heavy yields, one of the best varieties for marketing. This superb pepper is a real winner!

Jimmy Nardello - This fine Italian pepper was grown each year by Giuseppe and Angella Nardiello, at their garden in the village of Ruoti, in Southern Italy. In 1887 they set sail with their one-year-old daughter Anna for a new life in the USA. When they reached these shores, they settled and gardened in Naugatuck, Connecticut, and grew this same pepper that was named for their fourth son Jimmy. This long, thin-skinned frying pepper dries easily and has such a rich flavor that this variety has been placed in "The Ark of Taste" by the Slow Food organization. Ripens a deep red, is very prolific, and does well in most areas.

California Wonder- This is closest to what a traditional green pepper from the store is like. Thick blocky flesh, fruit weigh about 6oz. Widely adapted. About 75 days from transplant.

Golden California Wonder - Colorful golden bells that are very sweet and tasty. Gold peppers are superb for fresh eating, great for kitchen or market gardens. A yellow bell variety.

Red Belgian – Early and high yielding fruit, they start off yellow and turn red. These sweet peppers are wedged shaped, 3 ½ inches long, with sweet and rich flavor!

Marconi

Italian pepper that yields big 7" long tapering fruit, very sweet, great for frying or fresh! A very popular red pepper that stands up in the heat. Tasty when green too.

Purple Beauty

- ★ Sweet bell pepper
- ★ Dark purple on the outside, green on the inside.
- ★ More mild flavor than a green bell pepper
- ★ Sturdy compact plants are early producers – 70-80 days from transplant
- ★ Beautiful in salads.

Red Cherry

[Introduced before 1860.] Shaped like bonbons, these little cherry peppers are a good size for lunch box treats, and they are great for pickling, canning, and stuffing. Bushy 20" plants bear fruit that starts green and turns dark crimson-red. 70 days from transplant.
